Orchestra Collective of Orange County (OCofOC) will present the third concert of its third season on Sunday, January 27. The concert will feature two late, great symphonies by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. Symphony No. 35, "Haffner" includes some of Mozart's most thrilling, buoyant writing for strings, equally memorable for the leaping melodies of the first movement and the breathtaking race to the finish that is the finale. Mozart's last symphony, No. 41, "Jupiter," is a fitting conclusion to the symphonic career of a composer who died far too young. This symphony has all the scope and grandeur that a work named for the Roman king of the gods would suggest. From the majestic, trumpet and clarinet-enhanced opening to the imaginative tour de force closing movement, "Jupiter" is an unmissable wonder to hear and behold.

OCofOC is a collectively-run symphony orchestra based in Orange County, California. Founded in 2016 by veterans of the Southern California classical music scene, we believe that collaboration and self-governance can and will yield amazing results, both artistically and otherwise! A group that embodies and embraces diversity of all kinds, we strive to produce one-of-a-kind musical events that will thrill both longtime concertgoers and complete musical newbies. The concert will be conducted by OCofOC music director, Dr. David Rentz. Artistic director of the Orange County Symphony from 2011 to 2016, Dr. Rentz is an accomplished choral, orchestral, and opera conductor who currently serves as associate professor of music at Chaffey College, adjunct professor of music at Claremont Graduate University, and as a founding conductor of C3LA (Contemporary Choral Collective of Los Angeles).
